

Pioneering a New Civil Society

Here the participant will learn to discover ways and means of building community with friends, family, support groups, neighborhoods, co-coworkers, co-learners, cyber-companions and discover the art of creating self-reliant community in a global age. This requires a move toward politeia, a Greek word much richer than politics, which derives from it. Politeia is a civic society carried to its utmost. It implies that all free citizens are actively involved in creating and maintaining their community, empowering each other to further their common social agenda. For social artists it requires the plumbing of our emotional depths, the manifesting of our minds best thinking and, above all, the courage to follow through. We will explore and discover the ways in which the politeia can operate towards the regeneration of society.
